As you may know, the Basic Education Funding Commission had been set in place to review how Pennsylvania distributes existing tax dollars to our public schools in order to give every child a quality education – regardless of their zip code.

Yesterday, the PA BEFC wrapped up their Commonwealth listening tour and have approved their report – including 8 key recommendations regarding a new formula for funding our schools.

Now is the time that we, as lawmakers, need to take action and address the inequity in our educational funding system that is caused by our over reliance on the local school property tax to fund our public schools. It is imperative that we help all homeowners by moving away from school property taxes to a fairer system to fix the structural issues in our educational funding system. By doing so, we will ensure each and every Pennsylvania student receives the quality education that prepares them for a successful future. Read the full report at pasenate.com/befc.

2024 REPORT

Childcare Tax Credit Expansion

Did you know that the average cost of childcare in Pennsylvania last year was $9,000 to $13,000 – more than 15 percent of the median family’s annual income? And because families can’t access affordable, reliable, and consistent childcare Pennsylvania’s economy loses $3.47 billion dollars every year in lost earnings, productivity, and tax revenue.

Childcare Tax Credit The Child and Dependent Care Enhancement Tax Credit that is available to Pennsylvanians at the state level is based on the federal Child and Dependent Care Tax Credit. Taxpayers must receive the federal credit to also be eligible for the state credit in Pennsylvania. The major expansion means Pennsylvanians could see up to a 233 percent increase in their tax credit from last year.
