Visiting the PA Farm Show

By Rep. Ann Flood

Last week I attended the 109th Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, our state Capitol.

I started the day at the State Grange booth for a legislative meet-and-greet. It was a privilege to speak with President Matt Espenshade and others about their vision and initiatives for 2025 and beyond. The State Grange is a family-oriented organization dedicated to strengthening communities through service, education, advocacy and fellowship.

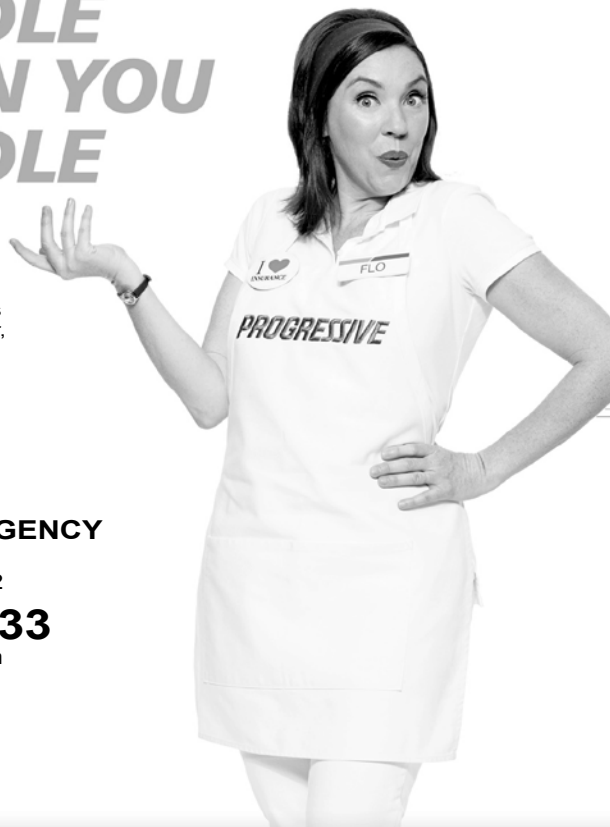

Later, I attended a legislative luncheon featuring informative presentations and a celebratory “milk toast” honoring Pennsylvania’s dairy industry. Joined by Reps. Kate Klunk and Zach Mako, I learned about exciting advancements, including autonomous farming robots, organic farming innovations and efforts to reduce carbon emissions. It was inspiring to see how our agricultural community blends innovation with its rich traditions.

Afterward, I explored the Farm Show exhibits, a highlight of the event. From livestock competitions featuring impressive animals raised by hard-working farmers across Pennsylvania to vendor booths showcasing unique handmade goods, there was so much to see. Of course, no trip to the Farm Show is complete without enjoying some delicious food—fresh milkshakes and savory dishes that highlight the best of Pennsylvania’s farm products.

The Pennsylvania Farm Show is more than an annual event; it’s a celebration of an industry vital to our state. Farming and agriculture drive Pennsylvania’s economy and play a critical role in feeding families here and across the nation. The Farm Show is a powerful reminder of the dedication, creativity and hard work of our agricultural community.
