

The State Farm Ting Program

By State Farm

WIND GAP - Receive Ting for free to help prevent electrical fires in your home.

Get Ting, a smart home device, for FREE, courtesy of State Farm®.

Of all home fires, the most destructive are electrical. According to the National Fire Protection Association, an electrical fire breaks out every 10 minutes.¹

What is Ting? A smart plug that monitors your home's electrical system 24/7, so identified hazards can be fixed before an electrical fire can ignite.

Why is State Farm offering Ting for free?

As a good neighbor, State Farm wants to help keep your family and home safe.

Ting detects arcing signals caused by damaged wires, loose connections or faulty devices that are often precursors to electrical fires. In the case of a Ting identified hazard, the Whisker Labs Ting Support Team will notify you through a phone call, text, email and/or app notification. If needed, a Ting-certified, licensed electrician will be dispatched to help find and fix the hazard, with your $1,000 credit at the ready. See Ting Terms of Service for details.

Before the end of the program, State Farm will notify the homeowner if the program will be extended as-is, changed or discontinued. No payment information is requested at the time of enrollment, and you can cancel at any time. There is no obligation to continue the service.

NASD Simulated Apartment Ribbon Cutting Ceremony

By Reps. Ann Flood & Joe Emrick

NAZARETH - Last Friday, my colleagues and I attended the ribbon cutting ceremony at Nazareth Area High School for the grand opening of the special education department's new simulated apartment.

This space will serve as a learning opportunity for students with intellectual disabilities to attain life skills beyond the classroom. It was an honor to tour the unit and see the impact this will have on the lives of so many students for decades to come.
