a WILD week IN REVIEW

It was another busy week in Congress, and I was happy to meet with so many of you both in Washington D.C. and back home in Pennsylvania.

First, I was thrilled to announce that I secured over $10 million from the federal government funding packages for projects across the Greater Lehigh Valley. Thank you to all of you for your advocacy on behalf of these important initiatives -- the positive impact they are sure to have on our public safety, housing affordability, and infrastructure is enormous.

My team and I were so glad so many of you stopped by our office this week to talk about your priorities and how I can best serve our community. I spoke with healthcare advocates at Argentum's Public Policy Institute where I discussed the need to support long-term care facilities for our seniors, met with constituents from Mack Defense to talk about my support of the Mack Defense Heavy Dump Truck program, and worked with Special Agent Kate Murray on a community event to highlight the harms of human trafficking and how we can put a stop to the terrible practice at home and abroad.

Rep. Wild Introduces Bipartisan Resolution Calling for the Release of Political Prisoners Held by Russia

Today, I joined my colleague Representative Ann Wagner to introduce a bipartisan resolution calling for the release of Russia's political prisoners. In the face of Putin's continual aggression, we must stand with our Ukrainian community and our allies abroad and demand accountability. This resolution calls on the U.S. Government to secure the immediate release of Russian citizens imprisoned for opposing Putin's war, and other individuals who have been wrongfully detained by his regime.

Rep. Wild Adds GOP Cosponsors to Bill to Protect IVF Access

From the beginning, I've said that the right to decide if, when and how to have children should not be a partisan issue. I'm glad to see that this week, some of my GOP colleagues decided to join me in the fight to protect access to assisted reproductive technologies. With the right to IVF treatment under attack, we must take immediate steps to protect this procedure at the federal level, which starts with passing my bill, the Access to Family Building Act.

Rep. Wild Highlights Support for Long-Term Care for Seniors

I was honored to join Argentum's Public Policy Institute this week, to talk about the work we must do on behalf of our seniors to ensure they have access to affordable, quality care as they age. I spoke about my own experience finding care workers for my mother, and how essential it is that we support long-term care facilities and the caregivers that have dedicated their professional lives to providing treatment to our parents and grandparents.

I am a proud sponsor of multiple pieces of legislation that would strengthen protections for health care workers, provide more resources to long-term care facilities, and support seniors in our community so that they can live with comfort, dignity, and security.
