

“In Her Element” Club at Northampton Area High School

By Turning Point of Lehigh Valley

LEHIGH VALLEY - We're honored to highlight the incredible work happening with nearly 20 dedicated young women participating in the In Her Element club at Northampton Area High School. This club holds special meaning to the community and those of us at Turning Point, as it was one that Rianna Glass—who tragically lost her life to teen dating violence—was actively involved in.

This year, one of the students from the club reached out to our Child & Teen Team to request a guest speaker. Since then, our Youth Prevention Advocate, Kessa King, has been facilitating the I Am Her curriculum with the group.

Throughout the sessions, Kessa has witnessed these students show deep engagement, curiosity, and strength as they navigate tough but important conversations about healthy relationships. The group has been learning to recognize red flags, set boundaries, and support one another in building a foundation of self-worth and empowerment.

On April 8th, we will be celebrating the conclusion of their group series—a chance for the students to reflect on their growth, share what they've learned, and honor their journey through I Am Her.

We're so proud of these students and grateful for their openness, resilience, and commitment to making a difference—both for themselves and in memory of Rianna.

Makayla Kohler Ms. Motorsports 2025

By Turning Point of Lehigh Valley

LEHIGH VALLEY - We would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to Makayla Kohler, Ms. Motorsports 2025, for her incredible support through her Queens Who Care donation drive, which provided over $450 in hygiene products to support women in need. In her own words, “Turning point is close to home and I learned a lot about it during my time in college! It just felt right to donate to them, and women in need. Thank you for allowing me to donate and for always putting others first.”

Makayla's dedication to empowering others is truly inspiring, and we are grateful for her unwavering commitment to helping those who need it most.
