a WILD week IN REVIEW

First, let me wish a very happy early Mother's Day to all the incredible moms in our community. The daily sacrifices and extraordinary love you have for your families does not go unnoticed. However you may be celebrating, I hope your day is full of love, joy, and laughter.

This week, we also celebrated all of the incredible nurses in our community who work hard every day to keep us happy and healthy. As your representative, I've been honored to meet with so many amazing nurses from the Greater Lehigh Valley and hear about their commitment to their patients and the struggles they face at work. I'm working hard to ensure our nurses, and all our health care professionals, have safe working environments, fair pay, and the mental health resources they deserve.

Finally, with high school graduations coming up, I know that students and families in our community are being impacted by this year's complicated federal FAFSA roll-out. To those who have been impacted, please know that my team and I have been in contact with the Department of Education for months trying to right this problem, and we are doing everything we can to advocate for Pennsylvania families throughout this process. In addition to calling on Secretary of Education Cardona to answer for FAFSA delays at our Education Committee hearing this week, I have also spoken directly with local college presidents on how the delays are impacting their schools.

I will not stop pushing for changes at a federal level to support our amazing institutions of higher education. If you have questions related to this year's FAFSA roll-out or need assistance, please do not hesitate to contact my office by filling out the form on my website. Rep. Rep. Wild Vows to Protect Reproductive Health Care and Fertility Treatments

In recent months, you have heard me talk a lot about the need to protect reproductive care and fertility treatments. That's because the stakes couldn't be higher – extreme, out of touch judges and politicians have made it clear that they think they know better than you and your doctor.

This week, I joined my House colleagues at a press conference to reaffirm my belief that medical decisions should be left up to patients and their providers, and that all Americans deserve the right to access the best medical technologies available to start or grow their families. As I said then, this shouldn't be a political debate – and I'm so grateful to have bipartisan support for my bill, the Access to Family Building Act, which would enshrine the right to IVF and other fertility treatments across the country.
