a WILD week IN REVIEW

I hope you are all staying safe after the storms this week. I know many in our community are still without power, and my team is in touch with local officials to ensure the situation is resolved as quickly as possible.

Yesterday, the Supreme Court released their decision on EMTALA in Moyle v. United States. As I said in my statement following the decision, while I am grateful women in Idaho will continue to have access to the care they need, this decision should not be viewed as a win. Future cases will all but certainly come before this Court, and those cases likely will not be dismissed on a technicality. We must continue to gear up for the next fight, and work to protect all reproductive health care (more on this later). Finally, don't forget that my district offices are always here if you need help with a federal agency. My team of constituent advocates can help expedite your passport, assist with your veterans benefits, intervene on your behalf with the IRS, and lend a hand in many other circumstances. To reach out to my team, please fill out the form on my website.

Rep. Wild Meets with Local Advocates

My work in Congress has always been informed by the priorities of my constituents. When I'm in D.C. for votes, it is so wonderful that so many members of our community are able to travel down to Washington to see our nation's capitol and meet with me and my team.

This week, I spoke with advocates from the League of Women Voters to hear about the important work they are doing to ensure all Americans have a voice in our democracy. I also met with local students who are currently interning with Ardent Mills and heard about how their internships are going so far. In addition, I sat down with representatives from GE Health Care Women's Health Initiative to learn more about their new One-Stop Breast Cancer Clinic, which will help breast cancer patients receive the care they need faster.

If you are interested in setting up a time to meet with me to discuss the issues that are important to you, please fill out the form on my website.
