

Supporting Those Who Support Survivors

By Turning Point

At Turning Point, we know that supporting survivors of domestic and intimate partner abuse is meaningful work, but it can also be incredibly demanding. That's why we believe it's just as important to support the people doing this work every day.

This summer, we hosted an all-staff picnic filled with good food, outdoor games, and a surprise visit from Oggie's ice cream truck. It was a chance for our team to relax, laugh, and reconnect with one another outside of the intensity of daily responsibilities.

Our Board of Directors also gathered this season to celebrate summer, build community, and share ideas about how to continue supporting the agency's mission and the people carrying it out. We know that when our staff are cared for, they're better able to care for others.

Opportunities for rest and joy are not just nice, they're necessary. We're proud to prioritize moments like these that help sustain our team and keep our work moving forward. We encourage you find some opportunities for fun and joy this summer!
