On the left were in support of Waste Management to expand their solid waste zoning district by 211 acres, on the right were opposed to the expansion.

Remember, It's Safe2Say Something

By State Rep. Joe Emrick

With schools now back in session, it's important to remind students, parents, teachers and community members about the Safe2Say Something program, which was established to offer an anonymous resource to report behavior perceived to be threatening to an individual or a school entity.

In addition to potential threats, the program has also received reports of issues such as bullying, anxiety, depression and suicide.

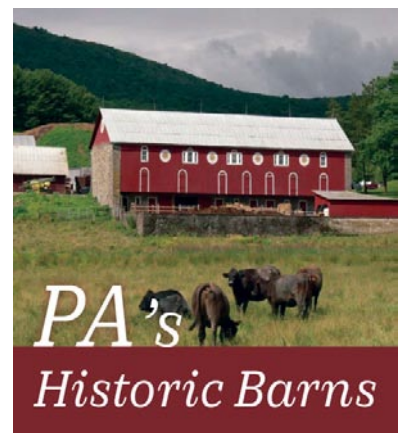

For more information or to submit a report, call 1-844-Saf2Say or visit safe2saypa.org. You can also download the "SafeToSay Something PA" app.

A Celebration of PA Barns

By State Rep. Joe Emrick

The Pennsylvania State Historic Preservation Office invites you to contribute to the effort of documenting and celebrating the barns of Pennsylvania that define our state's rural traditions. Barns represent the agricultural heritage, craftsmanship and local pride found throughout the Commonwealth. Whether your barn is a centuries-old bank barn, a family-built dairy barn, or a recently restored structure, the Pennsylvania State Historic Preservation Office wants to preserve its story. You can go here to find out how to submit your photos and background information and have your barn added to the Pennsylvania Inventory of Historic Places.
