

Prepare And Protect With Narcan Training

By Northampton County

EASTON - In November our efforts against fentanyl poisoning continue. There's no better time to get involved than right now. Our upcoming NARCAN trainings provide you with the tools and knowledge to save lives. Read on for details, and hear more about upcoming events to raise awareness in the community.

Host a Training at Your Business or Organization

Did you know that hosting a NARCAN training at your workplace or organization can be great for your team and your community? You'll gain the ability to save lives by reversing the deadly effects of opioids. It also promotes a safer work environment, and demonstrates your organization's commitment to community health. Our newest blog post explains how hosting a training session can make a positive impact.

Sign Up for Training on November 8

Join us on November 8th for a free NARCAN training session. Learn how to recognize the signs of an overdose and administer life-saving NARCAN.
