

2026 PA Farm Show Highlights

By State Rep. Ann Flood

What a fantastic time at the 110th Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg! As the country's largest indoor agricultural exposition, the Farm Show once again showcased the best of Pennsylvania agriculture and highlighted its role in "Growing a Nation" during our country's 250th anniversary.

I kicked things off at the Public Officials Day luncheon, then spent the day exploring the incredible exhibits. From livestock such as cows, sheep, horses and goats to the fan-favorite 1,000-pound butter sculpture themed "A Toast to Our Nation's 250th Anniversary: Inspired by Founders," there was so much to see and enjoy. Touring vendor displays, including the America250PA mobile unit, and grabbing a Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association milkshake with Sen. Dawn Keefer were definite highlights.

It was also a pleasure running into Pennsylvania State Police Trooper Ryan Seiple, a constituent from the 138th District, who was providing security for the event alongside his colleagues. The apple wall pictured behind us, displaying "1776-2026," was a perfect tribute to our nation's semiquincentennial and a reminder of the dedication of all those who help ensure events like this are safe and enjoyable.

A big thank-you to everyone involved in putting together this incredible event, from exhibitors and volunteers to our law enforcement officers. The Farm Show is more than a celebration of agriculture; it is a celebration of community, history and the people who make Pennsylvania proud.

Affording the Balance

There are many ways to pay for higher education, and an important step is searching and applying for scholarships. The more free money you can earn means less money you have to pay back. The presentation will cover types of scholarships available, tips for creating scholarship resumes, and briefly discuss how you can pay for the balance after all your free money is taken into consideration. The presentation will include several resources, including current scholarship opportunities. Join members of the private lending team to learn more.
