

Climate Scientist Michael Mann To Speak About Climate Change At Lafayette College

By Katie Neitz

Easton, Pa. – Climate scientist Michael Mann, professor of Atmospheric Science at The Pennsylvania State University and director of the Penn State Earth System Science Center, will speak at Lafayette College about the threat of human-induced climate change, the challenges to climate action in the current political landscape, and the importance of active citizenship in addressing the climate crisis.

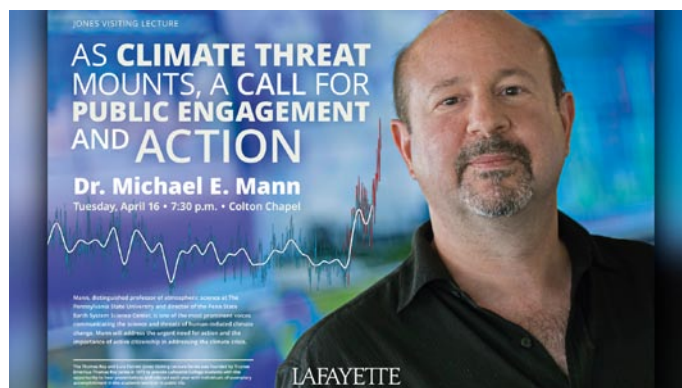

Mann will deliver his talk, "As Climate Threat Mounts, a Call for Public Engagement and Action," at Colton Chapel at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 16.

The event is free and open to the public. Members of the media are welcome.

Mann is a world-renowned climate scientist with expertise in climate modeling and human-induced climate change. He has received numerous honors and awards for his work; most recently he was awarded the Tyler Prize for Environmental Achievement (2019), the Award for Public Engagement with Science from the American Association for the Advancement of Science (2018), and the Climate Communication Prize from the American Geophysical Union (2018). Mann is the author of more than 200 peer-reviewed and edited publications, numerous op-eds, and four books. He is also co-founder of the award-winning science website RealClimate.org.

"Climate change is a defining issue of our time, posing a very serious and deepening threat to human societies," says Kira Lawrence, John H. Markle Professor and Chair of the College's Geology and Environmental Geosciences Department. "Dr. Mann is a prominent and well-respected expert in climate science. His visit presents a unique opportunity for our community to understand the pressing need for action to confront the challenges of climate change."

Mann's talk at Lafayette is a demonstration the College's commitment to environmental stewardship and promoting an ethos of sustainability on campus and in the community. In February, the College's board of trustees unanimously voted to approve a Climate Action Plan, which charts the path for the College to achieve carbon neutrality by 2035.

BHS MAMMA MIA, Meryl Streep Texts 'Break A Leg'

By Michael Ortoski

BANGOR - Director Butch DiMinico put on another hit at Bangor High School this past weekend with students performing MAMMA MIA to a packed house all three days.

Every year I cover this event and I am amazed of the talent these students have at such a young age.

If you have never attended you are missing one of the highlights of the year from not only the students but the music, orchestra, set design, sound and lighting, costumes...I could go on and on.

A thank you goes out to all the volunteers who help DiMinico put on a professional show every year.

This year the students were visited by Anne Roth who made the costumes for the MAMMA MIA movie and who shared stories about her life. One funny story was about a friend of hers while performing, had a bug fly down her throat while singing in the movie MAMMA MIA, the friends name was Meryl Streep!

Director DiMinico was shocked to find on his phone the next day a text message saying 'break a leg' from Meryl Streep.
