

Supporting PA First Responders

By State Rep. Joe Emrick

BANGOR - With fire and emergency medical service organizations across the state struggling due to a lack of volunteers and financial resources, the House and Senate Veterans Affairs and Emergency Preparedness committees held an informational meeting to discuss recommendations put forth late last year to address these challenges.

According to testimony offered at the meeting, the decline of volunteers in fire and EMS services across the state is having a significant impact on municipalities' ability to reliably and safely provide public safety services to their citizens.

Much of the decline in volunteers can be attributed to societal and economic changes, such as longer working hours and longer commutes. However, lawmakers were encouraged to consider incentives such as tax credits or college loan forgiveness programs to help recruit new volunteers. Affordable and accessible training was also encouraged as a way to remove barriers to volunteering.

These were among more than two dozen broad recommendations offered by the Senate Resolution 6 Commission, which was charged with studying issues such as recruitment and retention, government support, innovation, training and operations, and more.

One of the report's recommendations, which requires insurers to reimburse ambulance companies for services provided even if no transport takes place, was signed into law last year. Lawmakers plan to build on that success this year as they prepare to introduce legislation implementing some additional recommendations.

UGI's Request To Raise Customers Rates

By Michael Ortoski

HARRISBURG - On Monday, April 22, the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission will hold public hearings on UGI's request to make changes to the average customer's monthly residential heating bill in individual regions as follows:

UGI Gas South - from $62.45 to $72.93 (a 16.8 percent increase).

UGI Gas North - from $89.72 to $97.37 (an 8.5 percent increase).

UGI Central - from $93.68 to $85.91 (an 8.3 percent reduction).

Northampton County customers are either in UGI Gas South or UGI Central. Please click on the photo below to see which region you are in.

The proposal would also extend the current temporary federal tax credit on customer bills for a 12-month period, beginning on the effective day of new rates, which would reduce the distribution rate portion of customer bills by 4.5 percent during that 12-month period.

The hearings will take place at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. in Hearing Room 1 of the Commonwealth Keystone Building, 400 North St., Harrisburg.

You may participate in person or by telephone. In-person participation requires no further action.

To participate by telephone, please call 717-787-1399 by 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 17 to register through the Office of Administrative Law Judge.

Eagle Scout Recognition

By Michael Ortoski

WEST END - Two Eagle Scouts were recognized by State Senator Mario Scavello and St. Rep. Marcia Hahn this past week.

Heath Gagner of Troop 74 in Bushkill Township and Roger Perkowski III of Troop 85 in Tannersville.

"Thank you both for demonstrating the highest ethic of service to our communities" said Scavello and Hahn.

For his Eagle project, Heath designed and built a fire pit and stage area for Schoneck Moravian Church, including rock flooring, a stacked rock wall and crucifix. Roger added raised garden beds, soil and plants to the Major Paul Syverson Veterans Sanctuary in Jonas.

Tighter Homes are Healthier

I recently read an article about a home builder in the Midwest who tests the tightness of the homes he is building at intervals throughout the construction process. Energy auditors have all the tools for that kind of testing but builders almost never do and rarely seem to care enough to even have the houses tested let alone do it themselves. To me, this guy is right on the money for building energy efficient homes for his customers. There are many areas that cannot be sealed after construction and those areas will impact the energy cost for that home and also the comfort. They didn't say how much time he spends testing and sealing but I would venture a guess that it is less time than it takes me to test and seal a home that is less than 5 years old. Not to mention that he seals every leak at the entry point and not where the air finally reaches the living space. His end result is a home that usually far exceeds the standard (minimum acceptable) for new construction and usually meets or beats the leakage rate for a passive house.

When construction is finished, they take one last test and then size a ventilator for just the right amount of fresh air and the home is done. Uneducated people always jump in and say "I don't want a house that is too tight" and this is a statement that really agitates me because I see it as an excuse to allow contractors to be sloppy. The air that typically leaks into a home passes over a lot of things that you would not want in contact with your lungs and the dust you find on your furniture is usually proof of that. Everything from pollen to drywall dust to fiberglass and certainly air that has been filtered through rodent nests and feces. I will take a tight house that brings clean air in and filters it to meet the ventilation standard any day over one that just leaks air. Some homes don't even need an energy recovery ventilator. All they need is a timer on a bath fan to operate it for a few hours and the standard is met. So for those who use the lame excuse of not wanting to build something too tight, you really have to try hard to get it there. Much harder than the best work of any builder I have seen in our area.

If I find a builder who can build a tight home, I will endorse them and share their name with my readers.

Film Screening And Panel Discussion on 'No Small Matter'

By Jan Marie Schwartz / VP of Public Policy
Lehigh and Northampton Chapter of PennAEYC

EASTON - The Lehigh and Northampton Chapter of the Pennsylvania Association for the Education of Young Children (PennAEYC) is excited to be hosting a film screening and panel discussion for the film No Small Matter, the first feature documentary to explore the most overlooked, underestimated, and powerful force for good in America today: early childhood education.

Through poignant stories and surprising humor, the film lays out the overwhelming evidence for the importance of the first five years, and reveals how our failure to act on that evidence has resulted in an everyday crisis for American families, and a slow-motion catastrophe for the county.

We hope you can join us for this important event: DATE: Thursday, May 16, 2019, 6 pm - 9 pm

LOCATION: The Grand Eastonian, 140 Northampton St., Easton, PA
