

Lake Minsi

Most amazing is that one of the Minsi Martins on the west tower is one of the three young that were hatched, raised, banded & fledged from there last year! And one of the Minsi Martins on the east tower was hatched, banded & fledged from Leaser Lake last year! These two birds made it to South America & back to Minsi since last summer. Really important citizen science that we're helping to support!

Our Totts Gap Osprey pair, who hatched young by this time last year, appear to still be incubating eggs. In the photo you can see pops standing on his perch in the background, It's great to see them back again this year.
