Exclusively in the Blue Valley Times Warranty and DIY Ramblings

Everybody loves the thought of a lifetime warranty. In your mind you say "well, that's the last one of those I'll have to pay for". In reality that warranty is very specific and can be invalidated by so many things it's not funny. Lately, if we install an air conditioning system and the equipment is not registered with the manufacturer within 30 days, the 'lifetime' warranty is shortened drastically. Like down to 5 years. That's why I personally register each and every system we install.

A warranty covers manufacturer defects and normal wear. We do see some parts fail inside of that warranty but many times problems are caused by improper installation or external conditions. When a basement is flooded and parts are ruined, that is not a warranty claim. It may be covered under some homeowner's insurance policies but not a manufacturer's warranty. Some manufacturers even want verification that regular maintenance was performed before authorizing expensive claims.

In an effort to cut out the middleman many people are shopping for heating and air conditioning systems on the internet. On the surface it seems like a good way to save some money but there are many more pitfalls than one can imagine. One is that equipment registration may be impossible without the credentials of a certified dealer. Certifying contractors eliminates a lot of warranty claims for issues created by an improper installation and manufacturers require training to get certified. If the equipment arrives at your home and is damaged, the process for replacement is long and difficult. Surprisingly, air conditioning equipment is very easy to damage when it's handled roughly. Once it gets to your home, if you don't unbox it and check for cracked plastic or dented fins, it's on you, not the carrier.

Most contractors don't want to get involved in partial DIY jobs either. I did get involved last year in one for a friend and half of the parts they had there for installation were wrong. It took more than a week for them to return the wrong stuff and get the correct parts.

Warranties are a valuable part of any purchase but just like health insurance, there can be a lot of paperwork and it must be submitted correctly or there will be no payment. A contractor may not foot the cost of your parts until they get credit from a distributor so don't be surprised if you have to pay up front and get the cost of the parts back when the claim is approved. Deal with people you trust for best results.

Slow Down for School Buses

By Representative Joe Emrick 137th District

BANGOR - with some students returning to school for in-person classes, school buses are back on the roads. Motorists, parents and children are encouraged to refresh their memories about how to share the road safely.

Pennsylvania law requires motorists stop at least 10 feet away from school buses when their red lights are flashing and their stop arm is extended. Motorists following or traveling alongside a school bus must also stop until the red lights have stopped flashing and the stop arm is withdrawn. Do not proceed until all the children have reached a place of safety.

Penalties for failure to obey school bus safety laws can result in a $250 fine, five points on a driving record and a 60-day license suspension.

Parents are reminded to ensure that their children are at the bus stop early to avoid rushing. Students should stay where the bus driver can see them while boarding or exiting the bus.

For more information and tips on school bus safety, visit <http://www.penndot.gov/TravelInPA/Safety/TrafficSafetyAndDriverTopics/Pages/School-Bus-Safety.aspx>

Questions about this or any legislative issue should be directed to Emrick's district office at (610) 588-8011 or (610) 746-5090.
