

Continuing My Commitment To Preserve Open Space And The Environment

By State Rep. Tarah Probst

I'm pleased to announce that $1,183,200 in state funding is coming to Monroe County through Pennsylvania's Community Conservation Partnerships Program. These grants will help preserve open space, plan for future recreational needs and improve local parks.

The grants include: Pocono Heritage Land Trust: $948,600 to help preserve the Schmitt Cherry Valley property as critical habitat and open space.

Stroud Region Open Space & Recreation Commission: $78,100 to develop a plan for the future of local parks, recreation and open space.

Stroud Township: $156,500 to make improvements at Jay Albertson Park.

Our open spaces, natural areas and parks are part of what makes Monroe County such a special place to live, work and raise a family. I'm proud to fight for funding that protects our environment, preserves our natural resources and gives residents more opportunities to enjoy the outdoors.

Throughout my time in the state House, I've made open space preservation and environmental protection priorities. Investments like these help our communities conserve important natural areas, plan responsibly for future growth and maintain high-quality recreational spaces for residents.

Protecting our open spaces, preserving our natural resources and investing in places where families can enjoy the outdoors will always be priorities for me. I'll continue working alongside our local communities to secure funding and support projects that protect what makes Monroe and Pike counties such wonderful places to live, work and raise a family.

The Community Conservation Partnerships Program is administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources. It provides grants to support recreation, conservation and community revitalization projects across Pennsylvania.
