PA Farm Show Returns to In-Person Event in 2022

By State Rep. Joe Emrick

HARRISBURG - The 106th Pennsylvania Farm Show is set to begin on Saturday, Jan. 8, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. This year's theme is "Harvesting More."

After an all-virtual show in 2021, the event returns to its traditional in-person format but will also continue some of the virtual experiences that allowed Pennsylvanians to participate in the Farm Show in new ways.

The food court will continue to be a popular destination with new offerings including pierogies, shredded portabella mushrooms, veggie burgers and corn dogs, beef jerky snacks and more. New things to do include a canine spectacular, Bethlehem's National Museum of Industrial History, a "So You Wanna Be a Farmer" section and an Urban Gardening feature. For a full rundown of new foods and features this year, click here.

Admission to the show is free, but parking is $15 per vehicle. Shuttle service is provided.

The show runs through Saturday, Jan. 15. More information is available at farmshow.pa.gov.

Powerhouse Arts Complex Grand Opening

By Beth Duyssen

Powerhouse Arts Complex is located at 20-22 Broadway in Bangor and is owned by Megan Ruggerio and offers a variety of arts classes, including dance, yoga, exercise, vocal, and photography.

The ribbon cutting was attended by Beth Duyssen, SBCC Executive Director, Brooke Kerzner, Bangor Borough Mayor, and Joe Emrick, State Representative - who presented Megan with a certificate from himself and Mario Scavello. Following the ribbon cutting there were performances from Sarah Lanier, vocal coach and several of the student dancers!
